

Nova Medical Centers Hosts Informative Lunch and Learns About Safety and Health

DATE (Houston, Texas) Nova Medical Centers, based out of Houston, TX is collaborating with local partners across Texas, Georgia, Tennessee and Indiana to educate the community about a variety of topics by hosting Lunch and Learns. These events are complimentary for the public and intended to promote safety and occupational awareness in the workplace. Most Nova Lunch and Learns are hosted at one of their 48 medical facilities or at local businesses to accommodate all attendees.

Nova's CEO, Ulf Rohde, stated, "It is important for us to educate our partners on the latest occupational safety and health standards. From continuously updating OSHA regulations to devastating natural disasters like hurricane Harvey, hosting these Lunch and Learns are a way to help our clients prepare and stay aware of recent developments. We hope you join us for one in your area."

About Nova Lunch and Learns

Nova Medical Centers teams up with local partners to provide educational information regarding relevant topics and industry standards. Local Police Departments, State of Workers' Compensation agencies, and the Department of Homeland Security are amongst the partnerships Nova Medical Centers has created to ensure the best experience for those attending. Nova Lunch and Learn discussions include preparing businesses for a hurricane, active shooter training, and OSHA recordkeeping and reporting requirements. To date, Nova has hosted over 20 Lunch and Learns in cities such as Savannah, GA, Beaumont, TX, and Chattanooga, TN. Nova Medical Centers is proud to host events promoting safety and encourages employers to attend to provide a safer environment in the office and for their staff.
